

Abstract of the Disclosure

10

Processing a single channel audio signal provides a plurality of audio channel signals by separating the single channel audio signal into a first separated signal, characterized by a spectral pattern generally characteristic of speech, and a second separated signal processed to provide the remainder of the plurality of audio output channel signals.

3644647 P 2304430